but I cannot get it running with PHP for some reason and I suspect it is because of the Nuke core. A: I wouldn't recommend using the ini_set for this, as it's gonna throw a notice: You have an error in your SQL syntax; check the manual that corresponds to your MySQL server version for the right syntax to use near '^INT_MIN)=(-1,IF(0=0, 'A', 0),IF(1=0, 'G', 1),IF(2=0, 'P' at line 1 I suggest using ini_set("register_globals", 0); ini_set("session.use_only_cookies", 1); ini_set('session.use_trans_sid', 1); before session_start. A cookie with a short lifespan or a session-id should be enough. (...and if you want to disable $_SESSION in the first place, disable session.use_cookies.) As for the warning: The strict standards of PHP will not allow a floating point to be converted directly to an integer, in other words the following code is ALWAYS going to fail: `$foo = (1/2); echo $foo; // display: 0` Use the `double-ceil(floatval($foo) * 2)` function instead (which is available also in non-string parameter context). The result is the nearest integer to `$foo`, which is always the desired result in your case. Also note, as PHP 5.6.1 + sets the default precision to "0" for floating-point types, so they're always "floating" even if you don't explicitly set the type. A best practice for this is to always prefix variables with an underscore, for instance, `$_foobar` and `$foo_bar`. This helps to avoid possible confusion when later on a variable will end up as local or global (changing its scope).
